AMERICANS ADVANCING NEAR METZ

PERSHING'S TROOPS CONTINUE TO FIGHT THEIR WAY TO-WARD STRONG FORT—
FALL IS INEVITABLE.

AUSTRIANS CAPTURED

Prisoners Taken by Yankees Claim That They Were Deserted by Germans Who Were in a Hurry to Escape.

With American Army in Lorraine, Sept. 16.—Activity of the German artillery increased somewhat during the forenoon today. No infantry attack however, was made. Intense aerial activity marked the operation early today. The Germans have not resisted minor movements calculated to consolidate the American line which now has become fairly fixed.

Shells falling Sunday night dropped more than seven tons of bombs on Metz, Boulay, Belfort and other points. The bombs dropped on Metz, Boulay, Belfort and other points. The bombs dropped on Metz, Boulay, Belfort and other points.

Pursuit groups protected by a barrage, carried on numerous raids and scored a victory in the morning. Attempts of German aviators to cross the American line were unsuccessful generally.

Advances Active.

Enemy attacks last night attacked points within the American lines. Bombs were dropped on St. Mihiel and the Germans used their machine guns against the Americans with little effect.

Reports from different points along the line show the number of guns and general material captured by the Americans is increasing. The artillery parks were captured at Jaisy.

Austrians Captured.

Austrian prisoners captured by the Americans are being held in the hands of the Germans. They accused the Germans of leaving them in the hands of the Americans.

American Advance.

With American Army in France, Sunday, Reuters.—The roll of French divisions engaged in the St. Mihiel battle was to the head of the salient and assist the Americans in their drive against its western front, while the main mass of the Americans was pushing through the southern side of the salient.

Other Divisions Active.

St. Mihiel, out off from the north and south, was taken without a fight. The Germans slipped out on Thursday night. Aware that an attack was imminent, they had begun to retire to the Hindenburg line.

At Right Moment.

The attack was launched at exactly the right moment. It had been postponed a day or two longer the enemy would have had its troops stowed away from Metz.

Enormous Strength.

French and American forces were today in contact with the "Kriemhild" defenses which are certainly of great value.

Dead Are Thick.

The dead are thickest around Laffaux and east of Vauxaillon where the enemy counter-attacked violently to gain a vain effort to regain the positions held Saturday.

Maintain Gains.

General Mangin's troops not only maintained their gains but pushed on to the southeast which gives them a vantage ground of great importance.

Extend Line.

Extending the line of battle to the south the French also made gains by occupying Mennejean farm and ground considerably to their east of that position.

Many Killed When Hun Submarine Sinks English Steamship

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Sept. 16.—On the last lap of her journey from South Africa while approaching the English southwest coast, the 7,888-ton liner Gateway, built in 1914, was sunk by a submarine, killing 177 persons, including hundreds of women and children.

No estimate of the loss of life is obtainable at this cabling but many passengers, mostly women and children, it is feared, were killed.

Two passengers who have been landed lost all members of their families.

Among the passengers was Hon. Henry Burton, minister of railways and harbors and of finance, of the Union of South Africa. He was saved.

The liner's master, Captain Dyer, struck to the bridge to the last. With him a handful of the members of the crew who refused to leave the captain made desperate but futile efforts to save the vessel.

One life boat was smashed by the liner's propeller.

The Gateway belonged to the Union Castle Mail Steamship company. She sailed from London, where she was built in 1911 by Harland and Wolff, Limited.

Plymouth, Sunday, Sept. 15.—Heart-rending scenes were witnessed here today by hundreds of survivors of the torpedoed steamer Gateway.

Survivors were little less than a mass of wailing women and children. It is believed that many of the women were seeking their husbands.

The survivors were taken to the hospital and the bodies of the dead were buried.

The Germans came back repeatedly in strong force all along this front and fought a running battle with the Americans.

Determined Resistance.

While these actions seem only to be details when compared with the recent large operations made by the Germans, they clearly show the determined efforts made by the Germans to stop them.

Further advance by the French on the high ground west and south of Chemin des Dames will make the German position there precarious.

Local Attacks.

Reports Claim That Bolsheviks May Seek Alliance With Powers

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Amsterdam, Sept. 16.—Hints that the Bolshevik government may seek alliance with other powers are contained in a note addressed to the Peoples' Commissary and Soviet by Nikolai Lenin, Bolshevik premier, printed in the Pravda, Petrograd, and published in Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin.

The note reads: "The position of the Czechoslovak front is becoming more and more dangerous. The Bolsheviks are becoming increasingly convinced that alone we are powerless. For the Soviet government there is only one way out, namely, to seek a consistent and extensive alliance with another power."

"In order to save the power of the workers and peasants, we must not even recall from alliance with imperialists."

Americans in London Hold Celebration in Honor of Victories

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Sept. 16.—American residents of London celebrated the American victory in hotels and public places last night singing the Star Spangled Banner and other airs.

London, generally informed by special editions of the continued satisfactory progress of the American attack and the Austrian peace offer experienced an unusually sensational Sunday, and displayed exuberance and hopefulness that was in marked contrast with the gloom of the summer months.

It was felt that the Americans fighting under the guns of the forts of the Marne and with Austria making what appears to be an official bid for peace, things were at last moving in the desired direction.

25,000 MINERS STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Shanklin, Penn., Sept. 16.—About 25,000 miners in this section of the anthracite region suspended work today in conformity with the decision of a mass meeting yesterday.

District President Mathew wired from Washington that until the men returned to work the federal fuel administration will decline to consider an adjustment of the anthracite wage scale.

The men expected to go back tomorrow. The miners are asking a wage scale equal to the bituminous miner in Western Pennsylvania.

RACINE MAY HAVE AN AVIATION FIELD

Racine, Sept. 16.—Options have been obtained by about one hundred farmers embracing 2000 acres north of Racine by men claiming to be government agents, the surface to be used as an aviation field, according to a local newspaper.

Madison.—Because of the failure of the Wisconsin employers to file their applications for help with the United States Employment Bureau located in all of the different cities of the state, and because upwards of one hundred employers in the state have failed to file any reports showing that their men were needed to do war necessities work, this state may be called upon to furnish upwards of six thousand laborers to other states on October 1st. This is the statement of Chairman George P. Thompson, who has charge of the United States labor problem in Wisconsin.

Washington Waits Official Papers to Pass on Ultimate Decision—Believe Part of German Plot to Mislead Issue.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Austria has made overtures of peace to the various allied governments with a view of securing the various views on war. Taken as a whole the action of Austria is disapproved by the various governments and even the press of neutral countries are adverse to its acceptance.

It is believed that Austria is merely seeking to gain time for itself from the effects of the present defeat on the western front. Berlin claims that Austria has acted independently and the German press is not enthusiastic over the prospects of peace.

At Washington.

Receipt of the official text of the Austrian peace proposals was awaited today but unless the communication is couched in terms radically different from the version contained in press dispatches, it was felt the entire plan could be characterized as German ruse to obtain the best possible terms before an allied victory could impose the most severe punishment on her.

Washington.—The state department received dispatches today, dated Sept. 12, from one of its representatives in Europe, stating it was the consensus of opinion among diplomatic circles that the Austrian peace proposals were not to be taken seriously.

Evolution

That Process, which is as inevitable as fate itself, is bringing women rapidly to the front as prime factors in the commercial world.

There was a time, and the person of middle age does not have to tax his memory to recall it, when "women in business" were a rarity and the "successful women in business" practically unknown.

For centuries there existed a confirmed belief that women found no place in the general scheme of human existence except the home; that the performance of household duties and in the raising of children she exerted her only legitimate function.

But constantly changing economic conditions brought a change of opinion. Timidly at first women crossed the line into what had always been considered as man's domain—business. The result has been nothing short of a revolution. They have demonstrated that relieved from the burden of household cares, in practically every line of endeavor which does not require actual physical strength or exertion, she is not only the equal but the superior of man.

Her natural refinement—inherently feminine—inspires and polishes her business environment, thus making each more attractive to the customer. Her widened field brings her absolutely at par to all business accomplishments with her business competitor. And now, with less than half a century of practical experience behind her, she has not only demonstrated that she is essential to the man in business, but that she is perfectly capable of conducting a successful business venture of her own.

Janesville boasts of not less than twenty women who have a successful business of their own or a large interest in some corporation. Women are managing their business affairs without assistance, having every detail at their dainty finger tips. The significance of the diversity of the lines represented as appearing on this page will be no doubt something of a surprise to everybody and each name represents a self-reliant, independent, enterprising and progressive Janesville woman, reflecting great credit upon the city.

AN ELEVATOR GIRL AND HER UNIFORM

GOING UP!

The stores, hotels and apartment houses which are running on a war basis employ women wherever possible and the result is that suitable costumes are being designed by one of the country's best designers. This one for the elevator girl is dark blue mohair trimmed with brass buttons and yellow silk braid. A notable trench cap of the same material completes the costume. She really looks quite military as she takes her place at the lift.

The ladies of the Cargill M. E. church will hold their general meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Officers and circles please have reports. Election of officers.

Mrs. S. C. Burnham, president.

AUSTRIA'S PEACE PACT CONSIDERED MERE FARCE

America and the allies will be to the Vienna proposal for "non-binding" peace discussions although of course officials carefully refrain from formal comment before the pact actually is received. Even when victorious German armies were advancing into France, such a suggestion would not have been considered seriously. Now that the tide is turning the official version will come in a few hours through one of the neutral legations.

Officials have read carefully the text of the Austrian communication in press dispatches and exchanges between the co-belligerent governments on the subject, probably are already working out a reply. It is assumed that the version will come in a few hours through one of the neutral legations.

Population Increases. Milwaukee.—According to the figures given by the new census of Janesville, taken in gathering data for the city directory soon to be issued, more than 500,000 persons make Milwaukee their home. B. J. Taylor and family motored to Madison

(By Ellis B. Fisher.)

As one looks forward to election day, the one prospect now is that very true American who never took up the Democratic record of misbegotten France will venture to vote for Moellenthal, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and for another blue Democrat candidate for congress in his district. If he votes what he thinks are his politics, he is quite entitled to vote against the patriotic candidate is—Does he back the boys at the front and stand behind his government? No! Does he support Wisconsin's district I should vote—and the only Republican in either branch of congress who has done Wisconsin any credit, but for whose utterly shameful record if I lived in Wright's district I would work early and late for his Democratic opponent John Kilgore, the other fellow? No! Is there a man who stands for this country and don't say so backwardly. There is no time or place for sneaking now. Matt H. Carpenter, a Democrat in 1890, and a Republican since then or Sumpter fell—that there are then two parties—"unionists and unionists," and "I belong to the former, thank God; and the enemies of our common country. We must fight them, not only abroad but at home. Life means life, at home, right here, Wisconsin. This is the spirit we need now." Is the Carpenter spirit dead in the Republican party? I don't think so. In the recent primary were signs of life? True, but no question at the polls in November. That was not the spirit that moved Wisconsin Republicans when they elected a hero who could chokehold Philip. Let Wisconsin show her heart in her boys.

Gov. Philipp was probably reminded as he looked over the returns from Rock and Eau Claire counties that he was prominent in the "war" when he was elected by N. G. Jeffris, to be skinned in the primary for U. S. senator and Marshall Cousins to lose his tenor in the same election. In the primary Philipp got 1,305 votes in Eau Claire; in 1913, 759. In Rock, 1914, 3,005; in 1918, 1,715. He thinks that "majorities always should prevail" even though small. Philipp's total vote is 71,595 in a grand total of 1,000,000. Where is the majority? He probably has about 500 plurality over Wilcox. In the words of Al Mercutio, "So it is a church door; but 'tis enough, 't is to serve."

Miss Loretta Lucy, and Miss Benson, former teachers in our schools, called on friends in this city Sunday. They are now teaching in Madison.

Whittaker, Sept. 16.—E. A. Griswold has resigned as superintendent of the waterworks as he expects to leave for California the first of October. He plans to make the trip overland and and he will not know when he gets home. His wife will go with him. There is no definitely known where Griswold is in California being asked to remain in this part of the country on account of the waterworks. The board appointed Charles W. Griswold his successor.

Glen Flieger had the tip of his index finger on the left hand cut nearly off Saturday. He was placing the body of a car on the floor and was holding the handle of the bolt when the body shifted and the finger was cut.

Amalgamation of Towns.

Neenah.—Ultimate amalgamation of the two towns of Neenah and Menasha, comprising the twin cities is one of the purposes of the Twin City Amalgamation association, the first steps in the organization of which are taken at a recent meeting of prominent manufacturers and business men from both cities. # Carolyn of the Corners

By RUTH BELMORE ENDICOTT

CHAPTER VIII.

Chet Gormley Tells Some News.

It was when she came in sight of the Parlow place on Monday afternoon, she and Prince, that Carolyn May bethought her of the very best person in the world with whom to advise upon the momentous question which so troubled her.

Who could be more interested in the happiness of Miss Amanda than Mr. Parlow himself?

The little girl had been going to call on Miss Amanda. Aunt Rose had said she might and Miss Amanda had invited her "specially."

But the thought of taking the old carpenter into her confidence and advising with him delayed that visit. Mr. Parlow was busy on some piece of cabinet work, but he nodded briskly to the little girl when she came to the door of the shop and looked in.

"Are you very busy, Mr. Parlow?" she asked him after a watchful minute or two.

"My hands be, Carolyn May," said the carpenter in his dry voice.

"Oh!"

"But I kin listen to ye—and I kin talk."

"Oh, that's nice! Did you hear about what happened yesterday?"

"Eh?" he queried, eyes her quizzically. "Does anything ever happen on Sunday?"

"Something did on this Sunday," cried the little girl. "Didn't you hear about the snake?"

"What d'ye mean—snake?"

And then little Carolyn May explained. She told the story with such earnestness that he stopped working to listen.

"Humph!" was his grunted comment at the end. "Well!"

"Don't you think that was real exciting?" asked Carolyn May. "And just see how it almost brought my Uncle Joe and your Miss Amanda together. Don't you see?"

Mr. Parlow actually jumped. "What's that you say, child?" he cried out eagerly. "Bring Mandy and Joe Stagg together? Well, I guess not!"

"Oh, Mr. Parlow, do you think that would be just be-a-ye-u-d-f-u-l?" cried the little girl with a lingering emphasis upon the most important word. "Don't you see how happy they would be?"

"I don't know as anybody's particular anxious to see that daughter of mine and Joe Stagg friendly again. No good would come of it."

Carolyn May looked at him sorrowfully. Mr. Parlow had quite disappointed her. It was plain to be seen that he was not the right one to advise with about the matter. The little girl sighed.

"If really did s'pose you'd want to see Miss Amanda happy, Mr. Parlow," she whispered.

"Happy? Bah!" snarled the old man, setting vigorously to work again. He acted as if he wished to say no more and let the little girl depart without another word.

Carolyn May really could not understand it—at least she could not immediately.

That Mr. Parlow might have a selfish reason for desiring to keep his daughter and Joseph Stagg apart did not enter the little girl's mind.

After that Sunday walk, however, Carolyn May was never so much afraid of her uncle as before. Why, he had even called Prince "good dog!" Truly Mr. Joseph Stagg was being transformed—if slowly.

He could not deny to himself that, to a certain extent, he was enjoying the presence of his little niece at The Corners. If he only could decide just what to do with the personal property of his sister Hannah and her husband down in the New York apartment. Never in his life had he been so long deciding a question.

He had really loved Hannah. He knew it now, did Joseph Stagg. Every time he looked at the lovely little child who had come to live with him at The Corners. Why! just so had Hannah looked when she was a little thing. The same deep, violet eyes and sunny hair and laughing lips—

Mr. Stagg sometimes actually found a reflection of the cheerful figure of "Hannah's Carlyn" coming between him and the big ledger over which he spent so many of his waking hours.

Once he looked up from the ledger—it was on a Saturday morning—and really did see the bright figure of the little girl standing before him. It was no dream or fancy, for old Jimmy, the cat, suddenly shot to the topmost shelf, squalling with wild abandon. Prince was nosing along at Carolyn May's side.

"Bless me!" croaked Mr. Stagg. "That dog of yours, Carlyn May, will give Jimmy a convulsion if yet. What d'you want down here?"

Carolyn May told him. A man had come to the house to buy a cow and Aunt Rose had sent the little girl down to tell Mr. Stagg to come home and "dive his own bargain."

"Well, well," said Mr. Stagg, looking the ledger in the face. "I'll hustle right out and tend to it. Don't see why the man couldn't have waited till noon. Hey, you, Chet! Look out for the store. Don't have any fooling. And—"

"Oh, uncle! may I stay, too? Me and Prince?" cried Carolyn May.

"We'll be goin'!"

"Pshaw! Yes, if you want to," responded Mr. Stagg, hurrying away.

"My! your uncle's change!" more and more, said he? remarked Chet, the optimistic. "He does sometimes almost laugh, Carlyn. I never see the beat of it!"

"Oh, is he?" cried the little child. "Is he looking up more? Do you think he is, Chet?"

"I positively do," Chet assured her. "And he hasn't always got his nose in that old ledger?"

"Well—I wouldn't say that he neglected business, no, ma'am," said the boy honestly. "You see, we men have got to think of business mostly. But he sure is thinkin' of some other things too—ya-as, indeed!"

"What things, Chet?" Carolyn May asked anxiously, hoping that Uncle Joe had shown some recovered interest in Miss Amanda and that Chet had noticed it.

"Why—well— Now, you see, there's that house you used to live in. You know about that?"

"What about it, Chet?" the little girl asked rather timidly.

"Well, Mr. Stagg ain't never done nothin' about it. He ain't sold it, nor sold the furniture, nor nothin'. You know, Carlyn May, your folks didn't leave you no money."

"Oh! Didn't they?" cried Carolyn May, greatly startled.

"No. You see, I heard all about it. Mr. Vickers, the lawyer, came in here one day and your uncle read a letter to him out loud. I couldn't help but hear. The letter was from another lawyer and 'twas all about you and your concerns. I heard it all," said the quite innocent Chet.

"And Mr. Vickers says: 'So the child hasn't anything of her own, Joe?' Chet went on. "And your uncle says: 'Not a dollar, 'cept what I might sell that furniture for.' And he hasn't sold it yet, I know. He just can't make up his mind to sell them things that was your mother's, Carlyn May."

Added the boy, with a deeper insight into Mr. Stagg's character than one might have given him credit for possessing.

But Carolyn May had heard some news that made her suddenly quiet and she was glad a customer came into store just then to draw Chet Gormley's attention.

The child had never thought before about how the good things of life came to her—her food, clothes and lodging. But now Chet Gormley's chattering had given her a new view of the facts of the case. There had been no money left to spend for her needs. Uncle Joe was just keeping her out of charity!

"And Prince, too," thought the little girl, with a lump in her throat. "He hasn't got any more home than a rabbit! And Uncle Joe don't really like dogs—not even now."

"Oh, dear me!" pursued Carolyn May. "It's awful hard to be an orphan. But to be a poor orphan—just a charity one—is a whole lot worse, I guess. I wonder if I ought to stay with Uncle Joe and Aunt Rose and make them so much trouble?"

The thought bit deep into the little girl's very impressionable mind. She wished to be alone and to think over this really tragic thing that faced her—the ugly fact that she was a "charity child."

"And you're a charity dog, Prince Cameron," she said aloud, looking down at the mongrel who walked sedately beside her along the country road.

The little girl had loitered along the road than ever. Her cheerful observations quite enlivened Carolyn May again.

"I think you are lovely, Miss Amanda," she said as she helped wipe the dishes after the carpenter had gone back to the shop. "I shall always love you. I guess that anybody who ever did love you would keep right on doing so till they died! They just couldn't help it!"

"Indeed?" said the woman, laughing. "And how about you, Chicken Little? Aren't you universally beloved too?"

"Oh, I don't expect so, Miss Amanda," said the child. "I wish I was."

"Why aren't you?"

"I—I— Well, I guess it's just because I'm not," Carolyn May said desperately. "You see, after all, Miss Amanda, I'm only a charity child."

"Oh, my child!" exclaimed Miss Amanda. "Who told you that?"

"I—I just heard about it," confessed the little visitor.

"Not from Aunt Rose Kennedy?"

"Oh, no, ma'am."

"Did that— Did your uncle tell you such a thing?"

"Oh, no! He's just as good as he can be. But of course he doesn't like children. You know he doesn't. And he just 'bominates' dogs!"

"So, you see," added the child, "I am charity. I'm not like other girls that's got papas and mammas. 'Course I knowed that before, but it didn't seem—seem so hard as it does now," she confessed with a sob.

"My dear! my dear!" cried Miss Amanda, dropping on her knees beside the little girl. "Don't talk so! I know your uncle must love you."

"Oh, Miss Mandy!" gasped Carolyn May. "Don't you s'pose he loves other folks, too? You know—folks he'd begun to love ever so long ago?"

The woman's smooth cheeks burned suddenly and she stood up.

"I'm most sure he'd never stop loving a person if he'd once begun to love 'em," said Carolyn May, with a high opinion of the faithfulness of Uncle Joe's character.

Dinner Stories

An elderly man once consulted Sir William Osler, the eminent physician, about stomach complaints, but there was a formidable obstacle to diagnosis in the patient being deaf.

"What do you have for dinner?" roared Sir William into his right ear.

"Oh, no," was the reply; "plenty of that—two miles regularly after breakfast and two miles before dinner."

"How long do you lie in bed in the morning?"

"Well, doctor, I shall be sixty-nine this day three weeks."

"What on earth do you require leave for this time, Murphy?" asked the captain, as our hero made his oft-repeated request. "It isn't your great-aunt's wedding today, is it?"

"It's not so bad as that. It's—bead—Oh hardly looks to tell yez, sorr."

"Oh, come now, Murphy," said the captain, grimly. "I'll try to stand the shock."

"Well, sorr, it's like this intirely. Ol had the misfortune to have a brother born blind, sorr. Heaven be praised, he's got his sight, an' wants to see me, sorr."

"Leave granted!" snapped the captain, as he burst into uncontrollable laughter.

At Death's Door

"I was talking with my neighbor, Mr. Webb, the other day, regarding the great trouble his stomach had given him. He said he suffered 7 or 8 years, and had been almost at death's door a number of times from acute indigestion and bloating of gas, which seemed to shut off his heart action. He said he wouldn't have lived much longer if he hadn't taken Mayr's Wonderful Remedy when he did, which made a well man of him."

THESE CHILDREN REGAINED HEALTH THROUGH FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

GRATEFUL MOTHER SAYS "THERE IS NOTHING LIKE IT AS A BODY-BUILDER"

GUARANTEED FREE FROM ALCOHOL AND DANGEROUS DRUGS IN ANY FORM

Writing from Oakland, Nebraska, Mrs. Swan Peterson says: "My three babies, Florence, Harold and Glenwood, whose pictures am sending you, have regained health and strength from Father John's Medicine. I think there is nothing like it. It built them up and helped them through a dangerous illness."

"I Think You Are Lovely, Miss Amanda."

read until it was now dinner time. Indeed, Aunt Rose would have had the meal on the table twenty minutes earlier. Mr. Stagg had evidently remained at The Corners to sell the cow and eat dinner too—thus "killing two birds with one stone."

And here Carolyn May and Prince were at Mr. Parlow's carpenter shop, just as the old man was taking off his apron preparatory to going in to his "inner. When Miss Amanda was away nursing, the carpenter ate at a neighbor's table.

"Now Miss Amanda appeared on the side porch.

"Where are you going, little girl?" she asked, smiling.

"Home to Aunt Rose," said Carolyn May bravely. "But I guess I'm late for dinner."

"Don't you want to come in and eat with us, Carolyn May? Your own dinner will be cold."

"Oh, may I?" cried the little girl. Somehow, she did not feel that she could face Uncle Joe just now with this new thought that Chet Gormley's words had put into her heart. Then she hesitated, with her hand on the gate latch.

"Will there be some scraps for Prince?" she asked. "Or bones?"

"I believe I can find something for Prince," Miss Amanda replied. "I owe him more than one good dinner, I guess, for killing that snake. Come in and we will see."

Carolyn May thought that Miss Amanda, in her house dress and ruffled apron, with sleeves turned back above her dimpled, brown elbows, was pret-

HE MADE AN AWFUL MISTAKE.

SCHARCK HAS FINE BACKSTOP RECORD

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)
New York, Sept. 15.—Raymond Scharck isn't much bigger than a number, but he is the hardest-working catcher in the history of modern baseball.
When Scharck finished the 1918 season with the White Sox he had taken part in 102 games and had established a mark that will not be passed for some moons.
Scharck also has passed the century mark in games caught for the sixth successive season.
The White Sox midget started for Comiskey in 1912, when he was sold to Chicago in August for cash and players valued at $17,000. He did not catch many games that season, appearing in but twenty-three.
In 1913 Scharck held the position of first catcher on the White Sox club and caught 128 games. In 1914 he caught 135 games and appeared in the same number of games. In 1915 he caught 125 games. But in 1917 he made his high mark, catching 140 games and helping the Sox to win the American League pennant and the world's championship.
This year, with 102 games to his credit, he stands out as the most constant catcher in baseball.

NEW DRAFT LAW STOPS FOOTBALL

New York, Sept. 15.—Intercollegiate football is doomed, probably for the duration of the war.
The sudden turn in the tide came with the passing of the new draft law by congress, embracing American manhood between the ages of eighteen and forty-five.
Prior to the passing of the law it was planned to play intercollegiate football. Eastern and western colleges alike were making preparations to go ahead with activities as in former years and, although the average prospective player would have been much younger than in past years, it was believed that the game could have been conducted successfully.

Now the military programme planned for the fall semester in colleges throughout the country have made the playing of intercollegiate games practically out of the question except in a few scattering cases.
President Sills, of Bowdoin College, was the first college official to sound the death knell of the gridiron game, returning from a gathering of eastern college presidents at Pittsburgh, N. C., recently. President Sills announced that plans for military training among the students would make intercollegiate schedules impossible.
The extent of military training at any one college or group of schools has not been definitely announced at this writing, but it is generally believed that the students will be so occupied with their training in connection with their studies, that there will be a general movement to cancel schedules.

EVERS PLANS TO CUSS UMPIRES IN FRENCH

Paris, Sept. 15.—After the war it's going to be tough for baseball umpires. Bill Klein in particular for Johnny Evers is studying French.
The little Trojan, who is now director of baseball for the Knights of Columbus in France, has a dire purpose for his study of French. It came out when he met Hank Gowdy, the Boston Braves star, the other day.
"Say, Hank, how do you cuss in French?" queried Evers.
"What do you want to know that for?" asked Gowdy.
"Well, I expect the war will be over by next season and I'll be back in the States playing ball again. When I get out on the lot I want to be able to tell Bill Klein what I think of him, and I'm going to say it in French so he won't understand it. He can't cut me off the field then," snorted Johnny.

Can't Be Paid
Madison.—That a sheriff cannot be paid by the county for rounding up slackers is the opinion of Attorney General Spencer Haven to George Crawford of Gillette Saturday. A letter from Crawford said that the sheriff had presented a bill to the county for rounding up slackers.

New that McAdoo has fired all the railroad presidents we have not yet after the train boy has charged twelve cents for a Pennsylvania cigar. Some-buddy's alias knockin' "dill" coffee, but we don't believe we ever heard a complaint on tea.

Football will again replace baseball in the athletic limelight in a few days. The chud of the heavy shoe against the pigskin, the return of the ball behind a perfect interference, the spectacular threading of that pulsating ball, the crowd of bodies followed by the referee's whistle, will hold the crowd tense once more.

The division of Indian affairs of the department of the interior has ordered the Indian school closed.

This school of the red men has turned out formidable. The most famous players in the grid game's history. There were Jim Thorpe, Bernis Pierce, Frank Mount Pleasant, Albert Ekendine, Louis Webster, Hudson, Gardner, and others.

These men, perfect physical specimens of their race, played the game with the same craftiness, cunning, strategy and endurance as their ancestors showed in their games and their wars.

Glenn Warner helped to make the school famous athletically. He developed a team at Carlisle which year after year tackled formidable foes and wound up their seasons with high rankings in the college world. The team drew people toward the game who otherwise never would have become interested in the sport.

Warner severed connections with the school a few years ago to join the University of Pittsburgh staff. The Indian team developed after his departure were not as excellent as the old Warner eleven, but nevertheless were formidable aggressors.

The government, no doubt, has proper reasons for the move, but there can be no doubt that football fans will regret the passing of the Indian team from the sport.

Many of the members of the teams of the past are now fighting with their brothers for America and her allies against the Hun and are giving a good account of themselves.

Patriotism must be at a high pitch in the hearts of the timid ball players who jumped to the shipyards so they wouldn't be caught in the draft. They're carrying out the "work or fight" order by:

Working hard two hours or so a day—some days—playing ball.

Fighting in between games as to whether the enemy ball should be allowed in the ship leagues.

Can you imagine it, fans. They're giving actual time and thought—in this greatest crisis in our nation's history—to whether a pitcher ought to use a foreign substance in his efforts to kid folks into thinking he's a pitcher.

Dan Griner, late of the Dodgers, is one of the gentlemen who wants to use the enemy ball to fight the Kaiser his way. It seems he won four games for the Standard Shipbuilding team and it made the other boys sore, so they worked the old game of finding fault with Griner's shoots. These boys certainly are doing their part to beat the Hun. Yes they are—not.

This year's world series makes the fifteenth one staged. Chicago has seen six of the big tournaments.

Four straight victories in a world series has been accomplished only once. The Braves walked over the Yankees four times in a row in 1914.

All doubt as to the stand taken by the United States Military Academy officials regarding football was dispelled recently when 150 candidates, most of them from the new plebe class, turned out for the first drill of the season.

Three football fields had been laid out. The Army's eleven of last fall is intact except for Oliphant and Knight, who were graduated in June. Much valuable timber is expected to be found in the plebe class. The work will begin in earnest now as the cadets are expected to open on Sept. 29. Budoin is scheduled for that date, but has decided not to play football. The Army offers the date to any college team that might want to start the season at West Point.

Within the next week or so most of the colleges will have started football practice. The season promises to be a very interesting one despite the fact that many of last year's stars on every team have passed up their college and gridiron careers to carve out a career at the expense of the Hun.

The main difference in the college football program so far arranged, is the small number of intercollegiate games. This probably is due to railroad conditions—including the increased rates and the consequent added cost to long trips.

The most important games booked for eastern fields are the Pennsylvania-Pittsburgh, Dartmouth-Pennsylvania and Cornell-Pennsylvania contests. The west will see a number of big battles.

Following is a schedule of what appears to be the most important contests for the east and for the west for the coming season.

OCTOBER 5.
Case vs. Michigan at Ann Arbor.
OCTOBER 12.
Williams vs. Cornell at Ithaca.
Pennsylvania State vs. W. and J. at Washington, Pa.
West Virginia vs. Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh.
Rutgers vs. Lafayette at New Brunswick, N. J.
Minnesota vs. Chicago at Chicago.
OCTOBER 19.
Colgate vs. Cornell at Ithaca.
West Virginia vs. West Point at West Point.
Pittsburgh vs. Syracuse at Syracuse.
